DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-4 are presented for examination.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

3. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Morgan et al. (U.S. Pat. No. 6,411,874).

As per claim 1, Morgan et al. teaches a user interface device a driver's information system (see col. 12, lines 46-67), comprising: a user interface module comprising at least one component (see fig. 2, element 18), a state of which can be changed by a manipulation of a user (see col. 4, lines 24-45, particularly “ permits a user to input commands and information while displaying information to the user in an interactive manner by presenting a graphical control panel of controls” ), the user interface module being configured to determine a state of the component (see fig. 12, and col. 16, lines 36-46); a function module configured to receive user input from said interface module and comprising at least one execution command signal generating unit for generating execution command signals (see col. 4, lines 24-45); and a control unit configured to receive the execution command signal from the function module and to actuate various devices responding to the execution command signal (see fig. 8), note that the control panel contains buttons for a variety of devices.

As per claim 2, Morgan et al. teaches a user interface device that further comprising plural of components wherein at least two of the components are interconnected with, each other such that if a state of one of the interconnected components is determined, states of other interconnected components are automatically determined (see figs. 1 and 12).

As per claim 3, Morgan et al. teaches a user interface device wherein when the states of the other interconnected components are automatically determined by the determination of the one component, the function module simultaneously generates execution command signals corresponding to the determined states of the interconnected components (see figs. 1 and 12 and fig. 8, element 212).

As per claim 4, Morgan et al. teaches a user interface device wherein the components of the user interface module comprise a static component, an input component, and an output component (see fig. 17, element 270 and col. 14, lines 6-16), wherein static being taken as lack of movement.
